

Old TIMBER resurrected

Old wood has certainly gained new respect at the Big Red Shed, especially in these environmentally friendly times.

The Big Red Shed located in Milton, specialises in large quantities of timber salvaged from factories, industrial sites, bridges, and wharves.

Stock which is available from The Big Red Shed is suitable for the construction of beach houses and pole homes, colonial houses, and any house requiring exposed timber beams and polished timber floors. Knocks and scrapes are just part of the old rustic charm of these character pieces with a definite past, which polish up beautifully.

Holding four acres of top-quality, one-hundred percent recycled rare timber, the The Big Red Shed's very own timber yard at Darra has the facility to mill extra wide hardwood flooring, of which these are remilled in beams. The timber yard is currently holding 6,500 tons of timber. Owner, Jim Ruig can mill the timber to suit your building requirements.

The timber is also suitable for kitchen bench tops, furniture pieces and, "oh so natural", anything at all that will look good made from timber. Jim now exports his timber to Germany and Saudi Arabia.

The Big Red Shed, and that is exactly what it is, also carries a wide assortment of doors; window frames; collectable items from yester year; assorted hardware pieces, and the list of stock is amazingly endless.
